Let me try! I think I still have all the info.

You just need me to test a kit item, right?

Margaret,

If you can create a retail order within Syspro, that is all you would need to do to be able to test. Are you able to get into the Dev environment?

Sure, I can do that! However, I am not sure how to submit an order thru eCat into the dev environment. Do I just need to build a misc one in there and select the SCT automation option?

Margaret,

I have some a ticket that I need some user testing to be completed before I can move to deploy it into production. The ticket SDM: 39066 contains changes to fix some issues with how kits are being processed through SCT/PO automation.

I just need a user to submit a retail order through the automation within the dev environment and confirm that the SCT/POs are created correctly with kits.

I can assist you if you have any issue with getting into the dev environment and showing emails and pdfs if needed.

Shawn,

I am trying to finish up a ticket (SDM: 39066), and currently waiting for your response to finish UAT. Ben has suggested that you submit some retail orders within our development environment to test how kits will process. I can assist you through UAT whether you need access or not.

Let me know what you can do.
