David,

I'm attaching the version that I have put together from your script.
Let me know if you approve?

David,

This is a quote from our documentation:
"Emergency- A change request to repair an immediate failure or prevent an imminent failure. Associated with a critical priority (severe impact and urgency) SDM ticket that affects production, causes outages, or significant degradation in business, or is accompanied by sufficient business justification. The change request form should only be used for production issue/defect request types."

I'm just trying to be transparent with how this need to be handled if you want this change in now.

Ok, how do we classify as an emergency? If not corrected, it will affect the calculations for Uniters commissions in the system and I would need to pull the query manually and have them load separately to correct.

I can do this if necessary. Just let me know how you would like to proceed and I can plan accordingly. Thanks!

David,

I can look at this, but the change cannot be made this week as there is a code freeze.

If this is qualified as an emergency, we can proceed but the next standard deployment would be the 28th.

Hey Justin,

I apologize as I know we just went through this, but I have a change to make in the way we are calculating total written sales for the period in the Uniters file only. Basically, we should be calculating total written sales for an individual the same way we are calculating written sales in the regular bi-weekly written sales query.

I made the necessary changes to the attached query and verified that the results are accurate. I tried to keep it similar in structure to the updates you had made to the query, but I kept the temp table inserts b/c it seemed to be calcing quicker on my end.

Take a look and let me know if you want to jump on a quick call to discuss and/or if you would like for me to create a different ticket. I was hoping you could make the change prior to the next bi-weekly file going out via SFTP tomorrow, so whatever route is quickest. Much appreciated!
